In addition to the clearing documentation required for account opening, there are various support documents that we require for KYC (Know Your Customer) due diligence. Please see a general guide for these requirements listed on the following slide.

NOTE:
- The following slide is a general guideline for the support documentation that we require, however we may need to contact you for further documentation under the following scenarios:
  - If we do not find evidence of capacity and authority to trade futures and/or swaps in the documents supplied
  - If the documents provided do not fulfill the KYC/AML due diligence, regulatory requirements and/or tax requirements
- Where there is an advisor for the account we will need to confirm capacity and authority for both the advisor and the account owner.
